

HOW THE Theodore Roosevelt MEDORA FOUNDATION CONTINUES HIS LEGACY

“Conservation means development as much as it does protection. I recognize the right and duty of this generation to develop and use the natural resources of our land; but I do not recognize the right to waste them, or to rob, by wasteful use, the generations that come after us.”

- Theodore Roosevelt, 1910

President Theodore Roosevelt was a practical conservationist. Today, we strive to follow his lead. To help celebrate the National Park Service that he helped shape so significantly, we've reignited our efforts to help ensure that our children, and our children's children, can enjoy our nation's wonders, too.

That's why, among other efforts, this report has been printed with a paper mixed with recycled sources. Helping American business while preserving natural forest. We believe President Roosevelt would say, "Bully!" to the balanced effort.

The 100-year-old theater you've never heard of was originally built in 1924 to serve as an activity center for Medora. In its early days, the building was often filled with movies, dances, and even boxing matches. Today, the Old Town Hall Theater hosts concerts, shows, and theater performances.

Beyond the stories told on stage, there's history weaved into the very design of the theater. Works by artist Einar Olstad adorn the walls. Olstad's oil paintings depict a western way of life, featuring cowboys, ranches, and Badlands. Adding to the artistic and historic atmosphere are murals by Joe Breckenridge, a traveling cowboy turned artist appropriately nicknamed Cowboy Joe.

Cowboy Joe added murals to the theater's walls in 1936. His artwork reflects the beauty of the Badlands, so even when indoors, guests are surrounded by the powerful landscape of the great American west. Whether you're in the Old Town Hall Theater for a minute, or a matinee, the moving art, tangible history, and undeniable legacy is sure to inspire.
